Is one euro of share capital enough for a limited liability company to start trading?

For: limited liability company and limited company

Verified by an official source · Reviewed: 2026-11-22

Applicability: For a limited liability company (j.d.o.o.) and optional services for the electronic start-up of business in Croatia.

Official guidelines for establishing a limited liability company with a minimum share capital of one euro are provided. A cash flow plan for the initial operations is prepared separately.

When this is applied

List the initial expenses, the timing of the first billing and the funds that the company will actually have. If the owner provides additional funds, agree and document the legal basis with the accountant.

What to do in practice

Compare the amount required until the first payment with the planned available funds.

A business example

The company has €1 of capital and expects €420 in rent and accounting in the first month. Before the first order, it plans to cover its costs and maintain liquidity in the following month.

Specific next steps

1. Compare the amount required until the first payment with the planned available funds.

Limits of application

For a limited liability company (j.d.o.o.) and optional services for the electronic start-up of business in Croatia.
