Practical business guidance · Reviewed: 2026-11-22

Applicability: For the preparation of the specification and handover of the service, in accordance with the provisions of the specific contract.

Export the content, catalogue, permitted order records and important settings. Separately record the domain, URLs, redirects and accesses that you can actually transfer.

When this is applied

For each record, record the format, location and owner. Check whether the new system can return the actual export job and organise the transfer of personal data according to purpose and permissions.

What to do in practice

Confirm acceptance of the migration after verifying exports, re-registration and the main user flows.

A business example

The new system can import products, but the image and variant are not linked to the same ID. A sample of ten different products uncovers the error before migration.

Specific next steps

1. Confirm acceptance of the migration after verifying exports, re-registration and the main user flows.

Limits of application

For the preparation of the specification and handover of the service, in accordance with the provisions of the specific contract.
